Creating an Extraordinary Audience Experience

Thank you for inviting Jen Buck to be part of your event. Every keynote is thoughtfully designed to create a meaningful, high-energy experience that audiences remember long after they leave the room.

The following guidelines help ensure the presentation is delivered as intended. Most requests are simple to accommodate, and if something isn't possible, please let us know. We're always happy to collaborate on the best solution for your event.

Audio-Visual

- Jen's presentation includes music, video, and immersive audience participation, so a brief A/V check prior to the session is essential.
- PowerPoint slides will be provided at least 48 hours before the event and should be loaded onto the presentation computer and tested before Jen's arrival whenever possible.
- Jen typically arrives 45–60 minutes before her presentation to complete the A/V check. If the room is unavailable during that time, an alternate testing time can be arranged.
- For audiences larger than 25 people, a wireless lavalier or headset microphone is required. A confidence monitor and countdown timer are strongly preferred.

Stage Setup

- Jen uses the full stage to create an engaging, interactive experience. Whenever possible, please keep the front of the stage clear of podiums, furniture, and other obstructions so attendees have an unobstructed view.
- If furniture cannot be removed, placing it at least six feet from the front of the stage is appreciated.
- For the strongest audience connection, projection screens are ideally positioned to one side of the stage or elevated above it rather than centered behind the speaker.

Scheduling & Logistics

- To build anticipation and allow adequate time for A/V preparation, a break immediately before Jen's keynote is ideal.
- If your agenda allows, a break following the presentation is also encouraged. Many attendees enjoy staying afterward to ask questions, share insights, and continue the conversation while the energy from the keynote is still fresh.
- Whenever possible, Jen prefers to arrive the evening before the event to avoid unexpected travel delays. Please arrange or recommend a hotel at the venue or as close to it as practical. A non-smoking room on a high floor with guaranteed late checkout is appreciated.

Presentation Materials

- Jen's presentation has been intentionally designed as a complete visual and learning experience. To preserve that experience, presentation slides are provided in their original format and are not converted into event templates.
- Because the slides are designed to complement the spoken presentation rather than serve as standalone educational materials, the complete slide deck is not available for download, publication, or distribution.
- If an outline of the presentation is needed for continuing education or certification purposes, one can be provided on the day of the session.

Photography, Recording & Intellectual Property

- Photography is welcome before the presentation begins. Please refrain from using flash photography during the keynote.
- Jen and her team reserve the right to photograph and record portions of the session for future promotional, educational, and marketing purposes.
- Unless otherwise agreed to in writing, audio or video recordings of the presentation may not be sold, licensed, distributed, published, or otherwise used for commercial purposes.
- All presentation materials, keynote content, stories, audience activities, exercises, methodologies, frameworks, slides, videos, and supporting resources are the exclusive intellectual property of Jen Buck and may not be reproduced, distributed, adapted, published, or otherwise used without prior written permission.
- No recording, transcript, photograph, video, slide, or other capture of the presentation may be used to train, develop, enhance, prompt, or operate any artificial intelligence system, machine learning model, large language model, digital avatar, voice clone, synthetic media, or similar technology without Jen Buck's prior written consent.
- Additionally, no AI-generated or digitally replicated version of Jen Buck's voice, image, likeness, presentation style, teaching methodology, proprietary frameworks, keynote content, stories, or audience experiences may be created, reproduced, adapted, reverse-engineered, or used to develop derivative works without prior written permission.
